Touted by the locals as 'little Venice', Treviso is described by poets as a città cortese ("courteous city"), a calm and peaceful atmosphere that induced 18th-Century Venetian aristocrats to choose the Treviso area as their ideal vacation spot.

Treviso is the home of world renowned Tiramisù, along with radicchio and Prosecco, just to name a few. It is nestled into an area, marked by the waters of the Piave, Sile and Livenza rivers, giving charming fluvial landscapes that intermingle with pretty hills and thriving fields that are dotted with elegant and stately homes. This much-overlooked town dates to Roman times and was long the most faithful of Venice's subject cities.

A brief presentation of the stars who will accompany during your stay:

Costantino Rocca. Golf's greatest Italian player. The 60-year-old is a three-times Ryder Cup player and the only European to have beaten Tiger Woods in a singles match in the competition, when he triumphed 4&2 at Valderrama in 1997. The press wrote of Constantino as the man who dragged Europe to victory, "The Italian rock that crushed the Tiger". It is remarkable Rocca ever became a golfer. He was 24 by the time he was hired by the Albenza club in Bergamo to work in the back office before he turned pro and revealed a determined side to his jovial nature.

Fabrizio Nonis, born in Toronto in 1964 from Italian emigrants, then grew up into the family butchery in Veneto. From the butchery, the "Bekér", (the Butcher), turned into one of the best known Italian eno-gastronomy journalist, presenter of tv shows, (featured on Rai , Sky, Alice), cook books writer, creator of important gastronomic events, professor at the University of Perugia and owner of the Culinary Academy of Marrakech. He loves to entertain his audience with the culinary and cultural histories of the product.

Giuseppe D'Aquino. Giuseppe D'Aquino, come from a family of doctors, excelled at school and was on the right track to become an engineer. He realised it was not what he wanted to do and he wanted to be a chef. 'I told my father, who said I could either choose to be safe or stupid.' After working in London, Switzerland, Los Angeles and many other, Giuseppe opened Ristorante Oseleta at the Villa Cordevigo Wine Relais, an eighteenth century Venetian villa. In 2013, it received the Michelin Star, thanks to the beautiful setting, attentive service and dishes which take inspiration from all the different regions of Italy.
